POPULAR DEMONSTRATIONS-THE

CHESS CARNIVAL. We have in this community a number of philosophers who live by what are called their wits, though Heaven knows they have no spice of the Attic salt. In Europe they are called chevaliers d'industrie, possibly because they despise anything like labor. Here we have no special name for them; their ways of living and their positions in the community being so widely various as to render the application of a generic designation a matter of impossibility. But there is one class of imposters who trade chiefly upon the public confidence, and manage to keep their names in the journals by artfully seizing upon and turning to account the leading topic-whatever it may be-of the day. This morbid anxiety for notoriety of any kind, and at whatever cost, is caused by our general tendency as a people to run after the last new thing, whatever it is-a prima donna or a politician, a work of art or a the same. Adventurers find that by placing themselves at the head of a popular movement they can easily claim to have originated it, and secure by the force of impudence the honor and profit according to the same of the same of Light, All the Year Round, Dickens Family Journal, Irish News, Irish American Porton Spirit Harman Land Round. the honor and profit accruing from it. Then there are always certain respectable and well-intentioned citizens-prominent men at the bar, in the pulpit, or in trade-who cannot forego a certain amiable weakness for seeing their names in print. The reporters say fine things of them; call them learned, eloquent, witty or pertinent, and the next morning they are an inch tailer, and find Broadway too narrow for their increased dimensions. For the sake of this small drink at the cup of fame these persons give the weight of their influence to help along the little schemes of the adventurers. Over and over again, this metropolis has been the scene of many such foolish demonstrations, of which that given the other day to Mr. Paul Morphy was the last and the most absurd. Absurd in its inception, and particularly absurd in the way in which it was carried out. Mr. Morphy, who has received more honors than we have ever given to our noblest and other popular pieces for the Piano, 10c. statesmen, our best authors, our finest artists. or our bravest generals, is only a successful player at chess, a game through which a great many lazy people in this country and great many lazy people in this country and in Europe waste a great deal of valuable time, and by which certain patriotic period. Mr. Morphy went to Eu-rope, and we believe was victorious over those of the leading chess players who con-tended with him. It may as well be under-

When the celebrators, and welcomers, and ore tors, and demonstrators are tired of Paul Morphy, and have returned him to his own charming bayous, who else will they parade? They must have somebody. Suppose they look about the clubs and pick out the strongest hand at whist, or journey to the land of cane-brakes and street fights for a slasher at poker, or a conqueror at cut-throat euchre, or a successful professor at high-low-Jack-and-the-game? Or if they wish to honor one who is really a great public benefactor, as well as a modest, amiable and estimable gentleman, in the best circles of the highest colored society, let them give a demonstration to our old friend Downing, the greatest oyster purveyor in the world,--There are no such bivalves as Downing's Saddle Rocks in London or Paris. Let Ostend or Billingsgate compare shells with him, and see if American institutions will not be again victorious over the effete and broken down

GREAT BREACH OF PROMISE CASE. CARSTANG VS. SHAW .- The defendant in this suit, just decided at St. Louis, is Mr. Henry Shaw, of that city, an old and highly respected citizen, of immense wealth, aged about sixty-five years, and the plaintiff is Miss Effic Carstang, a young woman under thirty years of age, the daughter of a deceased Methodist clergyman, of respectable character, but in comparatively humble circumstances of life. It was in evidence that Mr

Shaw, during a period of two years, continued those particular attentions to the young lady which are understood to be significant to an engagement, and which, unless on this supposition, would be manifestly improper. He visited her constantly, to the virtual exclusion of her other acquaintances; was treated as a privileged guest by the other members | the latest styles. of the family; was admitted to her private apartments, and in all respects was placed upon the footing of an accepted lover. He made her costly presents-among others, an elegant piano-and was in the habit of sending her, almost daily, such delicate takens of his affection as the choicest bouquets of flowers. His distinct admission, to her sister, of engagement, was also proved. As the time of marriage approached, for which the wedding-dress had been procured, he suddenly without warning or any excuse of a quarrel, discontinued his visits, having first removed the piano to his own residence, on the pretence that it was wanted for a musical party. How much Miss Carstang suffered in feeling we are left to conjecture; but her reputation was somewhat compromised by the abrupt discontinuance of Mr. Shaw's visits, leaving the impression that their pre-vious intimacy was open to a suspicion. The ful Lawns, new styles, 12½c, and 18¾c., very low, defence was lame and inconclusive. MATTINGS.—We have just received another supply of sup. white and colored MATTINGS,

IN calling the attention of the public to this val-uable and recently discovered deposit of this fertilizing article, we will merely state, that like all other phosphatic GUANOS, its most valuable constituent is phosphoric acid, or bone phosphate of lime; and that its mercantile value, as compared with other GUANOS of its kind, may be easily determined by the amount of phosphoric acid or bone phosphate of lime it contains. In order, there-fore, to give the public a thorough knowledge of what SOMBRERO GUANO does contain, we beg to refer to the following list of eminent chemists in different parts of the world, who have analyzed different cargoes, from average samples taken by themselves from the cargoes just as they arrive from the island, without drying or selection of specimens for analyzation. Each analysis will be xhibited, if required, under the original signature of each chemist named:

Of phosphoric acid, estimated as equivalent to phosphate of lime, it is found to contain-By Prof. Morfit, of New York, 79.70 Piggot, Baltimore, average of the importations just as they arrive, and just as they are offered to the public for sale. And for a like array of eminent authority, promiseuously obtained from promiseuous cargoes, in different parts of the world, we challenge a comparison with any phosphatic GUANO now for sale.
